Furry friend for children from firefighters

A special teddy dog has been created for the provincial fire brigade to help them rescue children in emergencies.

Developed with children's product technology institute (AIJU) and the Crecer Jugando (grow playing) foundation, the toy is designed to get their attention, distract them and calm their nerves.

It was presented last week provincial government president Toni Pérez and takes the form of a Belgian shepherd with its own interchangeable fire brigade uniforms.

"This idea, on which they have been working for the last three years, came from the ample experience of our officers in this field in order to divert the attention of children to minimise, as much as possible, the shock, stress or anxiety they may feel in an emergency situation," he explained.

In this way, the children will interact more easily with the firefighters, above all in situations when they need to follow specific instructions, either to get to safety, avoid making their situation any worse or so that they can be rescued.

The design took various factors into account, including giving it an attractive appearance, a specific texture and size that enable it to be hugged as a physical expression of emotions, and associating it with the work that is carried out by the firefighters. The breed of dog was chosen because it is associated with the rescue dogs in the canine unit, and the uniform gives it more personality, noted the service's chief inspector, Pepe Rubio. AIJU research coordinator Pablo Busó said they had worked with various ideas and proposals to achieve the most suitable toy, taking into account factors such as making the teddy very lovable and something children may want to communicate with.

'We are not aware of any initiative like this on a national level," he emphasised.

A total of 1,900 of these teddy dogs have been manufactured, so that they can be deployed in diverse situations from traffic accidents, to fires

Beware of the huggers

"The hug method is one of the favourites by criminals with older and not so older people. warn Elche local police.

They advise people to 'distrust if someone you don't know hugs you' in the street.

The person could be what has become known as a hugger mugger.

"These kind of people are very skillful," explained a spokesperson for the force.

And they can 'magically' make a wallet, pendant or watch 'disappear'.

Inclusive tourism programme launched

By Irena Bodnarec

Benidorm is hosting the very first Imserso tourism programme specifically for deaf people, in which 200 people with hearing disabilities from across the whole of Spain will have the opportunity to holiday in the resort.

The trips take place over two different week's, the first was April 21-27 and the second visit is this week, May 5 to 11.

Councillor for social services, Angela Zaragozí met with some of the participants of the scheme and explained that it is an inclusive leisure experience promoted by the state confederation of deaf people (CNSE) and the federation of deaf people of the Valencian region (Fesord CV) which also has funding from Imserso, from the ONCE foundation and the Valencia government.

The promoters made available a complete programme of activities accessible in sign language and the group visited several places outside of Benidorm including the toy museum and sea museum in Denia, the chocolate museum in Villajoyosa, Oceanogràfic in Valencia plus they enjoyed a sunset catamaran ride and boat trip to L'Al-

Calpe carries out work on pipeline

Aquas de Calpe is refurbishing the drinking water pipeline in Calle Almendros, which connects the networks of Avda Ejércitos Españoles (Calpesa water reservoir) and Avda Puerto de Santa María (Corralets water reservoir).

The cost of the work is €44,532 and it will take one month to complete.

The project is part of the measures included in Calpe's 'special drought plan' for the pre-alert phase of the drought and will significantly improve the response capacity of the supply system for the entire municipality, according to the town hall.

This action will improve the resilience of the drinking water distribution network that serves the centre of Calpe by improving the connection between the two deposits that serve this area: the Corralets deposit (with a capacity of 10,000 m3) and the Calpesa deposit (with a capacity of 5,000 m3).

It will also improve the capacity of the supply system to respond to possible incidents in the distribution networks of both the Orba wastewater treatment plant and the Barranc Salat desalination plant.

Since 2020, Calpe's drinking water supply has had a Digital Twin that simulates in real time, improving the effectiveness of daily operational tasks, carrying out various studies and even contributing to the planning of works and the response of the system.

The Digital Twin, which works with a hydraulic model linked in real time to the network's sensor system, makes it possible to simulate hydraulic behaviour in any period and under any operating scenario, whether real or hypothetical.

Calpe is currently one of the few water supplies in the world to have this operational technology.

Aircrew Association celebrates a 70th wedding anniversary

On Wednesday, April 24, members of the Aircrew Association Costa Blanca (ACCB) were delighted to share in the 70th wedding anniversary celebration of one of its members, Gordon Blythe and his bride of so many years, Caroline, at Casa Toni restaurant in Moraira.

Gordon and Caroline met and fell in love in 1953 in Singapore. Gordon was serving in the army there and Caroline was the daughter of Gordon's regimental sergeant major. Courting was, therefore 'interesting'! They shortly became engaged and, the following year, married at the Church of Christ The King on April 24. So began a marriage that took them to BAOR (Germany), Singapore twice and Northern Ireland.

Having served in the army for 43 years, Gordon and Caroline eventually retired and have lived in Altea for over 30 years.

Having heard a resumé of their life together, followed by a toast to the amazing couple from Max Maxwell, the association chairman, members and other guests and friends of Gordon and Caroline, enjoyed an amusing and emotional reply from Gordon. This was followed by a very personal and much appreciated tribute from their son, Gordon the younger, who had flown in from Germany to share the moment with his parents and sister, Julie, who also lives in Altea.

Prior to the lunch, life vice president Peter Langley said a highly appropriate grace and the excellent and very happy function was brought to a close with the aircrew toast proposed by the president, Tom Brown.

The Aircrew Association wishes Gordon and Caroline many more happy, peaceful and healthy years together!

No lack of fun and frolics with Pam's People

Pam Small is a dance instructor who runs fun dance fitness classes around the Marina Alta.

All funds raised at the classes are passed over to charities in the community, and in addition to keeping fit, sometimes you'll find the group doing demonstration dances at local events. One such occasion was the April Parkinson's Support Group held at the HELP Activity Centre in La Xara, Denia.

Pam's People danced to some old time tunes, and all the attendees were then invited to join in and 'cut some shapes'. There were some entertaining moves! The finale of 'Doing the Lambeth Walk' had everyone dancing, singing and laughing, and the whole performance was much appreciated by the audience.

Giving4giving to open new charity home store

Since opening it's doors in July 2012, volunteers at the Giving4giving (G4G) charity have raised well €300,000 to help and support local cancer charities and other worthy causes up and down the Costa Blanca. The money has been raised through sales at the charity shops, furniture warehouse and also organising various fundraising events. As a growing charity, Gary Burr, the charity president is delighted to announce that an additional furniture store is to be opened in early June, this time in Albir.

The new 'Home Store' will be situated on Avenida de Europa, 26, right next door to the Hotel Europa. Not only will the new store help to provide additional income for the charity, hopefully it will also benefit from becoming part of the local community and raise awareness of its vital work and people it supports.

Donate your unwanted items

Donations are urgently needed to fill the empty store ready for the grand opening in early June - namely, household furniture, sofas, beds, table sets, garden furniture, bric a brac, electrical goods, wall prints,

The Home Store aims to provide an array of discount goods and interior decor to suit every room, every style, every season and every budget.

Your kind donations can be dropped off at the new store or, alternatively, Gary can arrange a free pickup service for larger items, covering all areas.

Not long to go!

The Entertainers have had to delay their usual spring programme of shows due to extended holiday commitments. However, they are back to perform on May 15 for the Benitachell Bowls Club at their club house in Benitachell with many new songs and dance routines being rehearsed.

The Entertainers have restructured their programme of songs for the U3A Vall del Pop event on June 28 so that it can be a tribute to Sandra Welham, who died unexpectedly quite recently. Sandra was a founder member of The Entertainers. Yesterday, as I went through an old scrap book of press cuttings, I came across one from the Costa Blanca News for November 1, 2019, which is particularly poignant. This article reported on one of the very early shows by The Entertainers, where they were performing at a U3A Vall del Pop event in Alcalalí, in which I had highlighted Sandra's performance with the words: "Sandra took everyone's breath away in closing the (first) set with Send In The Clowns," and "Sandra, supported by Linda and Ditas, gave us a hauntingly beautiful I Know Him

Protecting your eyes at work

Article supplied by Specsavers Opticas

As part of their commitment to helping keep eyes healthy, Specsavers Ópticas are sharing their advice on how you can protect your eyes and your vision while you're at work.

Protect your eyes from the

If you work outside, you must make sure that your eyes are protected from the damaging UV rays. UV radiation from the sun has been identified as a leading risk factor for developing cataracts, as well as being linked to a host of eye problems later in life . Lifeguards and those working at sea should take extra care, as water and sand can reflect UV radiation and increase your exposure.

You should always wear sunglasses that offer 100% UV protection against both UVA and UVB radiation and conform with agreed safety standards to ensure they are giving you the protection they should. Wear sunglasses which offer maximum coverage such as wraparound frames and combine with a wide-brimmed hat, even if it is cloudy or overcast.

Reduce eye strain

If you work in an office, you will likely be on the computer for long periods of time. We're meant to be out as hunter-gatherers, looking out for predators in the distance. Instead, most of us spend hours every day reading and sitting in front of a screen.

Our eyes are not designed to be fixed on a single object for a long period of time and extended use of computers can cause eye strain if you don't manage your usage carefully. When we focus on our screens for too long. eyes become stressed and strained and may feel uncomfortable, sore, tired and as if they are itching or burning. You may also be experiencing blurred vision and headaches too.

We advise anyone working in an office and using computers for a long period of time to follow these tips:

- Follow the 20:6:20 rule: look up from your screen every 20 minutes and look at something six metres away for at least 20 seconds. Looking into the distance helps relax the focusing muscles of your eyes, which in turn reduces eye fa-
- Adjust your workstation - Adjusting your screen settings to ensure that the brightness and contrast are balanced correctly can help, as well as making fonts larger. Also be mindful of how your workstation positioned. Adjust your screen so it is 15-20 degrees below eye level and around 50-70cm away from the eyes and make sure your room is properly lit to avoid squinting.

• Reduce glare -Reflections on your computer screen can cause glare and lead to eye strain. Try reducing this by attaching an anti-glare screen to your monitor or windows to avoid external light shining onto the screen.

Wear the right eye protection

If you work in construction, gardening, or in a location with conditions which might lead to something going into the eye, it is vital to wear the appropriate safety goggles or spectacles for the task in hand. Eye injuries are one of the major causes of blindness and low vision worldwide.

Here are some common eye hazards to be aware of at work, so you can protect yourself when required:

• Trimming the hedge: Twigs in the eye are incredibly common - sometimes people may fail to notice the tip of a branch as they lean over to prune a hedge or push piles of twigs into the bin. This can cause anything scratches to ripping off layers of the cornea which can be extremely painful.

 Mowing and strimming: Watch out for objects hidden in the lawn that could be caught up and spat out by your lawnmower or strimmer.

- Handling irritants: It's so important to avoid touching or rubbing your eye as there are chemicals which can burn the eye and even plants that can cause severe allergic reactions.
- Power tools and pressure washers: Take extra care using power tools and pressure washers that can cause foreign objects to fly into the eye at speed.

Paint, solvents chemicals: Paint can contain chemicals that are severe irritants substances with a high alcohol content alcohol-based even hand gel for example can be a real danger as it can remove the epithelium...the layer of tissue that covers the cornea. Strong alkalis such as caustic soda and wet plaster and cement are also very harmful to the eyes.

• Joinery: This can be a key culprit of foreign objects in the eye. Don't risk hamwithout goggles on as it's so easy for a nail or flint to spark back up into the eye. Get your eyes tested regularly

Many problems with the eyes have no symptoms, so you should have a check-up with your optometrist every two vears from the age of three. While many people know that a routine eye test can identify sight-related illnesses such as glaucoma and cataracts, a relatively unknown fact is that the same eye test could help to detect serious medical conditions that you wouldn't usually associate with the eyes, such as diabetes, high blood pressure and brain tumours. If necessary, the optician will refer you directly for further medical examination to an ophthalmologist or your GP for treatment

They can also advise you on how to take care of your eyes at work and recommend eye protection, products healthy habits to reduce problems in your workplace.

Weekly Post May 8, 2024 - N° 221 Why is melanoma on the rise?

By Yasmin Vince, PA New 'gapersonalised mechanger' skin cancer jab is tested

It's the fifth most common cancer in the UK and experts are concerned about ever increasing rates.

The world's first personalised mRNA cancer jab for melanoma is being tested in British patients.

The "gamechanger" jab which also has the potential to stop lung, bladder and kidney cancer - is custombuilt for each person in just a few weeks, and works by signalling the body to hunt down cancer cells and prevent them coming back. This is phase three of the trial, led by University College London Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust (UCLH), and researchers believe it offers hope of a cure.

believe the rise in temperatures and hotter summers could be playing a part in growing rates of the disease and scientists have predicted 2024 could be our hottest year yet.

People are often keen to son, which look abnormal. These are not necessarily melanoma but those with FAMMM are at a higher risk."

People with past exposure to sunburns during childhood are also at higher risk, as well those who've used sunbeds.

Can you prevent melanoma?

According to Cancer Research UK, more than 80% of melanoma cases in the UK are preventable. Protecting skin from sun damage is key, by spending time in the shade on sunny days, wearing a hat and sunglasses and applying sunscreen generously and regularly - at least SPF 30, although Dr Mayou recommends SPF 50.

"And SPF 50 is only SPF 50 if you put it on quite thickly, but almost no one Melanoma is the fifth most common cancer in the UK, with one of the highest mortality rates. According to Cancer Research UK, around 16,700 people are diagnosed every year, and the charity has warned these numbers could increase by over 50% in the next two decades.

So, why is melanoma rising in the UK, and what else do you need to know about

What is melanoma?

Melanoma starts in our melanocytes - the cells which produce melanin, the pigment that gives skin its colour and helps protect us from UV radiation - and occurs when abnormal cells spread uncontrollably. Key symptoms include new abnormal moles, and existing moles that are changing.

The ABCDE checklist can help identify if a mole is abnormal. This stands for:

A - asymmetrical (does

Dr Susan Mayou, consul-

Why is melanoma on the

tant dermatologist at the Cadogan Clinic, says dermatologists are "definitely diagnosing more cases of melanoma" than in any previous

"This is partially because the public health awareness campaign has been so effective," says Mayou. people see dermatologists about abnormal moles than they used to, and we are able to diagnose melanoma, even pre-melanoma, early."

However, Dr Mayou is clear that the overall number of cases has increased as well, adding: "The majority of cases are related to sun exposure, and we are exposed to more UV rays now than we used to be."

Are climate changes playing a role?

As sun exposure is a key factor in melanoma, experts make the most of hot weather, but as many Brits are not used to being exposed to the sun, we may not always be vigilant with applying SPF and protecting our skin. It's also far more common now to go on holiday to hotter climes.

Who is most at risk?

Dr Mayou says there are several factors that could increase a person's risk of melanoma. "There is a genetic influence," says Mayou. "One in 10 melanoma patients have a family history of the disease.'

Skin type can also play a part. "People with fairer skin that burns easily are more likely to experience the type of skin damage that causes melanoma," Mayou adds. "There is also a condition called familial atypical multiple mole melanoma syndrome (FAMMM), those that have it have more moles than the average per-out of a bottle."

What to prune and when?

By Hannah Stephenson, PA

Here's how to cut back shrubs at the right time

Don't lose a mass of flowers by pruning your prized shrubs at the wrong time. Hannah Stephenson looks at what to prune now, and what can wait...

It's almost time for plants to start back into life, when gardeners dust off their secateurs to get their prized shrubs and trees into shape.

New buds are usually clearly visible by the end of February, and it's best to finish winter pruning before the spring growth really gets underway.

But it can be confusing for newcomer gardeners to know which plants prune to when. especially as if you start snipping at the wrong time. VOU could end up losing a load of season's flowers.

here's So. quick guide to take you through the points...

What to prune now

The general rule of thumb is that if your shrubs are deciduous and flower from late summer to autumn, then you can prune them in spring.

Before new spring growth starts, you can tidy up some plants, pruning broken stems which are rubbing up against each other, taking them back to a healthy bud or a main stem, and generally getting shrubs back into shape while they are leafless.

Plants including Buddleia davidii. potentilla, fuchsia, dogwood and wisteria can be tidied up now. Buddleia davidii is a vigorous shrub, which will come back stronger, so you can cut the stems down to 20cm high.

three buds. This process produces spurs, which allow the fatter buds to remain and bear larger flowers. It's also a good time to tidy the plant up generally, removing wispy growths, says the RHS.

Deal with dogwood

Dogwood, which is grown for its colourful winter stems, can be cut down to ground. This will re-energise plant and encourage many new colourful stems for next winter.

Watch the weather

In milder areas, start to tidy up bush roses, removing thin shoots and dead, diseased and dying stems. But if the weather is really cold, wait until next month.

Cut certain clematis

You can also prune largeflowering clematis (group 3) such as Clematis viticella and hybrids such as C. 'Jackmanii' and 'Etoile Violette', which flower in late summer, cutting the stems back down to 30cm (12in) to promote good growth.

Prune to a 'nodal point', just above a pair of leaves or buds, where the cut is more likely to heal. If you cut where there aren't buds, you could end up with fungal infections and die-back.

You can also tackle winterflowering jasmine, untangling the strands and cutting out dead, diseased and damaged stems. To give it a sound framework for next year, tie in new stems to the support system and trim back the side shoots to within about 5cm (2in) of the main stem.

What not to prune now

Avoid pruning shrubs whose flowers are produced on shoots which developed in the previous growing season. The flowering shoots should be cut as soon as they have finished flowering, to allow new shoots

These include spring and early summer-flowering shrubs such as forsythia, which blooms in March and April, weigela, kerria and philadelphus (mock orange).

Help overgrown shrubs feel better

While it's still cold enough, you can renewal-prune overgrown shrubs but don't go mad. Just take it in stages, removing some of the oldest branches each winter so that the plant will slowly rejuvenate, replacing those old branches with new ones over time. Within a few years, your shrub should have been revitalised with strong, healthy young growth.

Route 10 Pool winter league 2023/24

By Terry Read

Route 10 play recognised official blackball rules, games are played weekly every Thursday evening during our season (September to April), at various bars in Alfaz del Pi and El Albir.

This year we have had a super season of eight ball pool, once again culminating in a close finish between the top three teams.

The overall winners, El Nui Slammers, fought a late challenge from Camping Almafra (A) with only a game to spare. Just a Bar (B), last season's winners, finished in third place.

This year we had a record number of 14 teams taking part. The season started in September and finished in April with some 124 players taking part.

This year's presentation awards took place last Saturday, May 4 at Camping Almafra. This was an ideal venue with a separate bar area which was available exclusively for Route 10.

In all there were 100 attendees who came along for the evening. Awards were made teams and individual player achievements.

taking the overall top spot commended the other teams on their sportsmanship during the season.

Best individual performance this year went to Phil Lowe a member of the Almafra (A) team. Phil Lowe also won a small tournament which was played during the presentation event.

The food and drink flowed throughout the evening with live entertainment provided by The Sugar Shack Duo and an Eminem tribute act.

Our thanks go to our sponsors and hard working administrators.

It was a very successful evening and probably the best one yet, commendations were made to the organisers of the event.

We are always looking for new teams and players for the next season. If you have any interest in taking part please contact Route 10 on 96 506 3299. We are very diverse league and have players of all ages and gender taking part.

The new winter season starts in September and we will be running a smaller summer competition in June, July and August.
